AN IMPORTANT DECISION BY THE SUPREME COURT

The Case of the Verdugo Canon Water Company vs. Verdugo and Others Decided in Favor of the Company—Lower Court Overruled in Several Particulars—Decision is of Great Importance to Glendale and Tropic

A reference in one or more of the Los Angeles papers, about a fortnight ago, in regard to a recent decision of the Supreme court as to this case, was entirely misleading. The full text of the decision is now before us and from it we cull the salient points for the information of our readers. It is an unusually clear and clean-cut decision, written by Judge Shaw, formerly of Los Angeles, and especially well qualified by familiarity with this and similar cases in this section, to pass intelligent judgment upon it. The opinion starts out with a statement of facts. The court finds that there is in the Canon tract, owned by Verdugo (until recently), Ross and Thorn, 2669 acres, and in the valley below which is entitled to the water of the canyon by the original decree of partition, 3333 acres. That Judge Ross has about 100 acres of citrus trees on the canyon tract above the company's dam; that he began to pump water there in 1899 in quantity averaging about 18 inches; that Verdugo started pumping at a point higher up the canyon in 1897, pumping about 35 inches; that C. E. Thom had a well above Verdugo which had not been pumped, and that Thom and Ross both had wells about 1500 feet below the dam, on their respective tracts. The suit was brought by the company to prevent these parties from taking out water from the underground flow, claiming that it interfered with the supply below. This contention is upheld by the court, the opinion holding that the interference is clearly established.

The principal points of the decision are as follows:

The partition decree (of 1871) did not change the character of any rights, it merely divided them. All of the San Rafael Ranch was riparian to the stream, which was a part of the land itself. This was the case in respect to both surface and underground flow which constituted part of said stream. In making partition the rights to use of surface streams which previously attached to entire ranch, was severed and transferred to lands to which the waters were assigned. The right thus assigned was a riparian right and continued to possess that character with all its attributes. . . . the parties have a clear right to have this water remain underground (to supply surface streams) neither party should be allowed to decrease this necessary quantity to the depletion of surface streams. And it is conceded by all the parties except Verdugo.

All of the underflow, whether necessary to preserve the surface flow or not, becomes available for such taking as soon as it passes below such points of diversion. The right to make use of all such surplus still belongs to the lands riparian thereto in the same manner as before the partition. The underground water thus undisposed of, is not to be distinguished so far as legal rights thereto are concerned, from a similar surplus remaining in a surface stream after partition had been made allotting certain parts thereof, less than the whole, to the use of the riparian owners. The underground water was not set apart, and the available surplus thereof belongs, as before, to riparian lands to be used by the owners in accordance to the law of riparian rights. The relative rights of the parties to this surplus are to be determined from the partition decree. . . . For the determination of present rights to its use, it (the underground water) must be treated as constituting one stream. . . . No owner may, by extracting the underflow, diminish either surface stream to the injury of any party entitled to it. Lower court is declared to be in error in "attempting to designate on the surface of the ground, a boundary line separating these two supposed underground streams." Referring to the findings of the lower court, (Judge Allen) "Necessity is not the sole measure of right in such cases."

The decree of the lower court is declared erroneous (1) in permitting Thom and Ross to continue to pump and use the water from wells below the dam; (2) in allowing Judge Ross to continue to pump and use from his upper well on the canyon tract, enough water when added to his part of the surface flow of the East Side stream, a total of 22 1/4 miner's inches; (3) that Verdugo may pump 35 inches from his well and (4) that C. E. Thom may pump from his east well near the Verdugo well—the decree being erroneous as to the surplus of the underflow, if any, in that it does not limit the right of each to his proper proportion. The lower court is declared in error in respect to the Verdugo well, when asserting that there is no evidence to show that its pumping diminished the quantity of water at the point of diversion below.

"The defendant Verdugo should have been enjoined," declares the upper court, "from taking more than his share of the surplus underflow, unless as Verdugo claims, there was an estoppel against the plaintiffs which prevents them from asserting their rights." Quite a lengthy portion of the opinion is devoted to this question of estoppel, which means that the plaintiffs acquiesced, failed to protest, etc. The opinion of the higher court is summed up as follows, "The necessary elements are wholly wanting and therefore the defence of laches is not established."

In reference to the well of Judge Ross in the canyon tract, it is declared that his right does not extend to the use of the underground stream, "but only to have it remain to preserve the surface flow;" that he may use the unpartitioned surplus of the underflow only in proportionate share to other parties interested, including the plaintiffs.

The plaintiffs claimed that Judge

Ross was estopped from pumping so as to effect the underflow, even if he should take out but his "reasonable share," on account of certain transactions between him and the plaintiffs. Relating briefly these transactions, the judgment of the court is to the effect that "he (Ross) is not estopped to pump water from his upper well, for use on his part of the canyon tract, to the full extent of the share due to that land." In regard to the right of Judge Ross to take out of the underflow above the dam, water to be used on land below, the court decides that "if any can be taken out without producing that effect (diminishing the underflow intercepted by the dam), he and the other owners of the land below are each entitled to a reasonable share thereof."

In conclusion the court gives directions relating to a new trial. In its opinion there is reason to believe that pumping either above or below the dam is a process of exhaustion. No party above or below should be allowed to take by such process more than his reasonable part of the available surplus. No one has the right to pump water above the dam for use on his lands below, if such pumping decreases the flow at the dam.

The only just method of adjusting the rights in this surplus of the underflow, is to ascertain as near as may be, the total average amount thereof available for his use, and the amount required by each party when used as economically and sparingly as may be reasonably possible, and upon this basis, apportion to each his due share. In this calculation the amount of the underflow collected by the dam should be included as a part of the whole available surplus underflow, and the portions of that water delivered to those interested in the dam, not including the surface flow there distributed, are to be charged to said parties, respectively, against their share of such underflow. Also those who are now pumping water of the underground stream above or below the dam, must be charged therewith as part of their shares and the amount pumped computed as part of the whole supply to be apportioned. It is certain that there will be no surplus and it may turn out that some are pumping or receiving more than their share. It also appears that in some instances several persons are using a common pump. There can be no objection to this, if all of them are entitled to receive some amount and reserve only their due."

"The total supply can only be determined by the court after a consideration of such evidence as it can obtain on the question."

"The judgment and order are reversed, with costs of appeal in favor of plaintiffs."

SHAW, Judge.

We concur: Lorigan, J.; Angellotte, J.; McFarland, J.; Sloss, J.

Judge Beatty, concurs with some modifications. He says there is but one sub-surface stream and adds: "I think that all the owners of the canyon tract, and of the lower tract have a right in common to pump from the sub-surface stream each his just proportion of the sub-surface flow, irrespective of its effect upon the surface flow." He declares further: "There is nothing in any of our previous decisions which conflicts with the right of the owner of land overlying an underground stream to pump a reasonable share of the underflow flow to the surface, and apply it to the surface for irrigation, even though it may diminish the surface flow of a stream breaking out below. In doing so he is merely exercising his riparian right."

FARMERS' INSTITUTE

Three Sessions Held at Burbank on Saturday Last—Some Excellent Papers and Practical Talks

The Farmers' Institutes as conducted under the auspices of the University of California, have become a recognized power in the dissemination of practical knowledge among agriculturists and horticulturists throughout the State. Indeed, they cover every branch of industry connected with the soil. All questions in regard to crops, the dairy, the poultry yard, the apiary and other matters of interest to those who depend upon or are interested in country life, are brought before these meetings and discussed by practical men and women. One or more university professors is always in attendance, primed with knowledge which is the result of actual experiments and scientific research.

The Hon. J. B. Neff, of Anaheim, is at present the manager of these institutes for Southern California, and is well qualified for the work. It is a matter for regret that the appropriation for these sessions is about exhausted, so that for the coming year there will probably be but few meetings.

Farmers generally do not seem to realize the importance of these institutes. In this day of intensive methods and scientific management of the soil, no farmer can afford to miss a chance to attend them. Aside from the regular program of papers and speeches, there is the "Question Box," which is really the most interesting feature of the meetings. The asking and answering of questions in regard to matters of general interest never fails to bring out some valuable fact or suggestions.

The attendance at the morning session was rather small; more visitors were present in the afternoon and the hall was filled in the evening. The entertainment given by the ladies was not down on the program, but was certainly one of the most enjoyable features of the day. A long table running the full length of the hall was crowded with a great variety of most tempting edibles, running the whole course of a picnic bill of fare from salad to pie, with hot coffee in most hospitable measure. For doing this sort of thing to "the Queen's taste," commend us to the ladies of Burbank. The following is the program:

Inglewood Incorporates

After the effort to incorporate had been defeated once at the polls, Inglewood voted again the other day and decided by a vote of 121 to 57 to become a city of the sixth class.

Congratulations to the youngster; watch him grow!

The committee on the reception to be given to the fleet of Admiral Evans at Los Angeles, has finally decided to accept the offering of resident Japanese to the fund for reception purposes.

That there should have been any hesitation about accepting it in the first place is sufficient to be ashamed of.

Homer King, "general" by the grace of some newspaper cabinet, is the latest authority quotable as to Japan's being engaged in preparing for war.

King and Hobson both see blood on the moon. More modest authorities such as Secretary Taft and others may well take a back seat and let the carnage begin.

That the Supreme Court has decided that the Southern Pacific Company cannot recover the $200,000 expended in protecting the Imperial country from overflow by the Colorado, seems to us, from a superficial view, to be a matter for regret. The splendid achievement of that company under the direction of Epes Randolph in turning the raging Colorado back into its original channel, should have its fair reward.

The decision, however, is no doubt a proper one from a legal standpoint—the only one that a court can consider.

"Regarding Cheap Advertising"

This time it is the Sawtelle Enterprise alleging that this paper printed a certain "Notice of Hearing" at "the absurd rate fixed by the Board of Supervisors," (of 1½ cents per line), all because the San Fernando Press alleged this to be a fact.

We have not yet heard from the Podunk Bugle or the Milpitas Weekly Blizzard on the subject, but rather expect to be favored by complimentary personal mention when they do arrive.

We denied this canard last week and hereby do so again. Still, our brethren of the country press have had some pretty good comments to make on the subject, and the immaterial fact of their being based on a false text need not detract from their force.

The Case of Verdugo Canon Water Company vs. Verdugo and Others

The final decision of this case by the Supreme Court of the state in the opinion from which we give liberal extracts on another page, is the practical culmination of a long-drawn-out series of suits at law in which the people of this portion of the valley have been engaged for many years past, and is cause for general congratulation.

In practically all of these cases, the contentions of the land owners immediately below and in the vicinity of the mouth of Verdugo Canon have been sustained. The decision of Judge Allen in the Superior Court granting land owners above the point of distribution a right practically to pump out all the water they thought they needed, at the very evident expense of water owners in the general system, was so evidently illogical even to the observation of a layman, that the decision of the upper court is only what could have been expected. Aside from the beneficial results to this community, the decision is of more general interest as possibly foreshadowing the action of the court in regard to the San Fernando Valley case in which the City of Los Angeles won out in the lower court.

It will be noted that in the Verdugo case riparian rights are very emphatically recognized, that the right of a land owner to pump water from the sub-strata is indeed beyond question. It would seem (again to a layman) that this principle cannot be disregarded in the valley case.

The Lincoln-Roosevelt Republican League

This organization has not been advertised as it would have been had it been one popular with the big newspapers of the state; but yet there are some of this class of papers supporting it, among them the San Francisco Call and Sacramento Union. In Southern California it has the support of the Los Angeles Express, Los Angeles News, Pasadena News, Riverside Press, Santa Ana Blade, Medianaus Citrograph, Pomona Times and eight or ten smaller journals, and many others will doubtless come out in favor of its principles before election time.

The big dailies are the recipients of too many favors from the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, Standard Oil and a few other large "interests" to permit of their being enthusiastic over a movement which is distasteful to their best patrons.

The object of the league is a reform of the Republican party from within; or in other words, to wrest the control of the party in the state from the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, which now dominates it. Its alleged purpose is to wage at the primaries the fight for this control.

In this contest every Republican who desires to see the nomination of the best men on the ticket that he expects to support and wishes to have a free legislature in California that will not be dictated to by the political agent of the Southern Pacific Railway Company, should give his earnest support to the Lincoln-Roosevelt Republican League.

cases in San Francisco, had better go slow. Most of the opinions expressed in the newspapers are too obviously fathered by the thought. Every right minded citizen wishes to see justice done and the guilty ones convicted, but Rueff is certainly entitled to some sympathy if, as appears, the prosecution used him for its purpose and then violated its solemn agreement.

We have no faith in a public prosecutor or a private citizen who considers himself justified in breaking a serious pledge, even if given to a miserable grafter.

The prosecution paid for keeping Rueff in private apartments instead of at the jail where he belonged, the sum of $87.50 per day, amounting to $2625 per month. Then when he failed them in not testifying as they desired he was put in jail. If the poor wretch finally concludes to swear to anything that the prosecution dictates for the sake of obtaining his freedom, the "justice" secured by such methods may well be an object of suspicion. It looks as if Mr. Cheney cares only for results, but it matters much to the people at large how the results are obtained.

The ways of the prosecutors of witches in the good old days of old were far superior. The victim was thrown into a pond. If he attempted to swim or save himself, it was conclusive evidence of guilt. It was only the innocent that allowed themselves to drown peacefully without a struggle.

The "Yellow Peril"

Yes, it undoubtedly exists; we can no longer deny the too self-evident fact. It thrusts its ugly jaundiced face athwart the radius of our vision and compels our recognition. We have it for breakfast and dinner for a regular thing and sometimes a yellow extra for luncheon; we are dosed with saffron, and with Saturn in the ascendant we have yellow nightmares that vanish only with the surrounding gloom, and in that horizon of gloom the dullest eye of fancy can discern the Mikado of the overseas waving the north pole for a scepter and wiping his feet on the remaining patch of a continent which indicates where the United States of America was.

Yes, we have the Yellow Peril, and it is a matter serious enough for the most sombre Jeremiahs—it is the Yellow Peril. But a little while ago and we could count them; one or two in New York, one in Chicago, another in San Francisco with its side partner in Los Angeles and a few of lesser yellowness elsewhere. But now the disease has spread, the yellow microbe has prospered, increased and multiplied until a large proportion of the daily press is thoroughly inoculated with it. Once upon a time we swore BY the Los Angeles Times; now, in a perfectly ladylike manner, we swear AT it. We can remember when in its news columns the reliable collection, of gossip by the Associated Press, predominated; but now the tame and colorless narration of facts lurks inconspicuously in the background, while the "Special Correspondent," with his saffron tale of woe, is headlined on the front. One day last week a prominent place was given to a story which told of four new battleships having been ordered to "reinforce" Admiral Evans' fleet in the Pacific. The tale should not have deceived a reader who seriously reflects, but the misery of it is that so few readers do that. It was a palpably absurd story, but just as reasonable as many others from the same or similar source. The next day, an inconspicuous dispatch informed the reader who chanced to see it, that "Inquiry among officials at Washington failed to corroborate it."

And so it goes; day after day the "Yellow Peril" gets in its deadly work of deceiving the public and the public pays for the deception. And herein is the core of the matter: as long as the public demands thrills, the great daily journals, "the moulders of public opinion," will furnish them with "facts" manufactured for the occasion. "War with Japan" is now their favorite topic. It would be amusing if it was sincere, it would be amusing if it was not liable ultimately to result in the curse of its own creation, and this it is that makes it criminal.

We do not know whether the great newspapers of Japan are pursuing the same policy in regard to the matter as are their contemporaries in the United States. If they are, there is a possibility that war sometime may be the result; but it will have been brought about by the Yellow Peril of the Press.

DEATH OF DR. H. B. WING.

We regret to note the death in Los Angeles on Wednesday last from pneumonia of Dr. Horace B. Wing. Dr. Wing was the owner of the large orange orchard on Sixth street east of Adams street, Glendale. At one time he made his home here and was well and favorably known to our people. For several years he had filled the position of assistant surgeon for the Santa Fe Railroad company and in addition to that work was partner with his brother, Dr. Elbert Wing, in a large private practice. Without knowing it to be the case, we have no doubt that his untimely death (he was only about 50 years of age), was largely due to overwork. He leaves a widow, who has many friends in Glendale, and two children, a boy and a girl. Dr. Wing was a very able physician, an honorable, generous man and will be sadly missed by a large circle of friends.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The name of Evangelyn Tuttle, from Casa Verdugo, has been added to the roll, being number 119. It will be remembered that the basket ball game between Glendale and Compton was awarded by the referee to the Glendale team by a score of 21 to 20. The official rules adopted by the league, declare that there shall be one score-keeper, to be appointed by the home team, that his score shall be recognized as official. Miss Spalding was the referee in this case and gave her decision as above. Compton appealed, however, claiming that the score should have been 22 to 21, in favor of Compton.

The score keepers were Mr. Walton for Glendale and Mr. Frew for Compton. When the matter came before the executive board, they found no error in the scores, but nevertheless ordered the game to be played again. The game as played by the Compton team was a very rough one and had many unpleasant features, which were not brought before the executive committee; if they had been brought to their notice, the probability is that their decision would have been different. A number of parents were reluctant to have the game played over, fearing a repetition of the rough features of the first contest; but they have consented for their children to try it over and the contest comes off today (Saturday), when it is hoped the patrons and friends of the school will be out in full force. Should Glendale team win from Compton, they will then have to play the Alhambra team another game to decide which is the winner in the semi-finals. The winning team will then play the winner in the other series which is comprised of five other schools.

LINCOLN-ROOSEVELT REPUBLICAN CLUB ORGANIZED.

Pursuant to a call issued by the committee in Los Angeles, there was a meeting of Republicans at the city hall Saturday night for the purpose of organizing a Lincoln-Roosevelt club. A very short notice of the meeting had been given, but about a score of voters were present. Mr. Frank Forbes addressed the meeting, stating the condition of political affairs which made necessary the effort to work a reform within party ranks in order to wrest from the Southern Pacific railroad company its control of the party in California. After Mr. Forbes had spoken and two or three others had given expression of their views, a club was formed and the following officers elected: President, J. C. Sherer; first vice president, C. F. Parker; second vice president, G. E. Williams; secretary, H. P. Coker.

The meeting adjourned to meet at the same place Saturday evening, Feb. 22d, when it is expected that Judge Waldo M. York, Lee Gates or some other prominent speaker connected with the league will be present.

A cordial invitation is given to all Republicans who wish to see the party freed from railroad control, to join the club.

FOR SALE—Brand-new Excelsior Incubator and Brooder. Will sell for the expressage from Quincy, Ill., to Glendale. Apply to McNutt, Sycamore Canyon.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

The regular meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon club, held on February 11th, was poorly attended, perhaps on account of general inclemency of the weather and the knowledge among regular attendants that the place of meeting is not usually overheard. However, the members on duty valiantly decorated and greatly brightened the room with the warm glow of undaunted poinsettias, and a cheerful blaze "found itself" in the new heater which was topped off with the happiest kind of a tea kettle.

When the gavel sounded it was a cosy and pleasantly expectant group of ladies that gathered within the radius of warmth of the little stove that was doing its fullest duty.

On account of the absence of Mrs. Robert Morris, president, who is ill with La Grippe, the chair was filled by the vice president, Mrs. Robert Blackburn. Under her able guidance regular business was rapidly disposed of and new work discussed. The civics committee asked for co-operation and support in plans for an Arbor Day, and a Flower Show, to be given perhaps in May. The question of obtaining free trees and their disposition was discussed and laid over until the next regular meeting. The question of giving ten-cent "Library Teas" aroused much interest, as the money thus obtained would be used in the purchase of new and desirable books for the public library that is trying so hard, and with a degree of success, to grow. A committee of three, comprising Mrs. John Hawken, Miss Ruth Byram and Mrs. P. Potts, was appointed to determine the desirability of giving a series of these affairs. Mrs. Hawken extended to club members an invitation to meet with her on Tuesday, Feb. 18th, at her home on Valley View Road, which was accepted.

As chairman of the literary program Mrs. Hawken presented a paper on "The Thirty Years of Peace Following the War of 1812," and was accorded generous applause. Her bright talk evidenced familiarity and interest in her subject. There followed a charming social hour, when tea, dainty waters and bon bons were discussed. Mrs. Bartlett, of Orange street, and until recently of Pomona, was present as the guest of Mrs. Blackburn.

AFTERNOON TEA AT MRS. GILLEAN'S.

One of the pleasurable events of the current week was the afternoon tea given under the auspices of the Presbyterian ladies in the charming and attractive home of Mrs. D. C. Gillean, corner Randolph and Louise streets. The unbonneted ladies, included the hostess, Mrs. Gillean, the president of the Workers' Society, Mrs. Daniel Campbell, of Ard Eevin, and the wife of the pastor, Mrs. S. Lawrence Ward, with many of the prominent members of that energetic society. The rooms, charmingly arranged for just such an affair, were gay with sweet blossoms. In the reception hall and parlors were lilies and glowing poinsettias, and gay masses of wild mustard. From two until five o'clock tea was served in the bright dining room, where the round table was delightfully arranged with a center piece of margerites, and wreaths of dainty vines and early spring blossoms. The most fragile and dainty china was only one of the pleasing accessories, and the generous supply of delicious home-made cakes, the "made in Glendale" varieties.

Mrs. Thomas Ory and Mrs. Daniel Campbell poured the tea, assisting ladies were Mrs. C. F. Parker, Mrs. M. P. Harrison, Mrs. Lawrence Ward, Mrs. McCoy. Many strangers and visitors to our city were among those present.

COUNTRY CLUB ENTERTAINMENT.

Invitations have been issued by the Glendale Country Club for a card party on the evening of Feb. 17th. In addition to invited guests the families of members in general are expected to be present. The club is giving a variety of entertainments, dances, card parties, concerts and small receptions, all of that high character which has marked previous affairs at this club's elegant and homelike quarters.

Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition

[Special Correspondence]

Seattle—The work on the grounds and buildings of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition goes on without interruption. The manufacturers building will soon be ready for the placing of the big roof, while the agriculture building is rapidly taking shape.

The auditorium, machinery and fine arts buildings, permanent structures, will soon be under way, as likewise will the mines and fisheries buildings.

The exposition is gaining many more friends in congress. A favorable hearing was had recently in the house committee on industrial exhibitions, at which many prominent men appeared in behalf of the 1909 fair. Among them was Secretary Taft who is in favor of a liberal appropriation for government participation. The committee in the senate has reported the exposition bill favorably. The exposition measure as it now stands makes an appropriation of $700,000. Of this amount $300,000 is for buildings and $400,000 for exhibits. The exposition management has assurance that the bill will pass sometime in the future.

A banker's success depends absolutely on one thing, and that is protecting his depositors, and American Bankers, of all men, now know it. It is good working policy to have faith in your banker; in times of doubt consult him. He may give you unpleasant advice, but the chances are he's right!"

BULLETIN OF PROGRESS.

Seasonal rains have fallen over California during January, insuring good pasturage and good crops for the coming year. The rains have extended to the southern part of the state, and have been of incalculable benefit.

Reports from many parts of the state are to the effect that the demand for small farms is unprecedented and constantly increasing. Small holdings on tracts formerly devoted to grain raising have proven so profitable that special effort is being made to have all large tracts subdivided. Much money formerly invested in industrial stocks is now being invested in small California farms.

The demand for dairy produce is becoming so great that special effort is being made to increase the output, and creameries in all parts of the state are increasing prices to farmers. This is one of the best opportunities offered small farmers, giving promise of quickest and best returns.

Reports received by the California Promotion Committee from its Eastern affiliates are to the effect that there is greater demand for California small farms than ever before noted. One report is that in parts of New Jersey there threatens a general exodus of small farmers and families of small means to California. The announcement of the settlement of the difficulties between transcontinental railroads and the establishment of the spring colonist rate means much for the progress of the state for this year. The reduced rates will be in force during March and April. Parties are being formed in many parts of the East and Middle West to take advantage of these reduced rates, and a large increase in population is looked for.	Oakland building permits, $373,279. FARMERS' INSTITUTE

Committee on arrangements: J. F. Trueman, S. Fairburn, J. W. Radcliff, E. A. Fischer, Chas. Pomeroy, A. S. W. Fulton. Committee on music: J. F. Trueman.

The piano solos by Johnny Hols deserve mention as one of the good features of the program; the young man is a performer of unusual ability. The morning talk of Mr. Neff was devoted to telling of the work being done at the experimental farm of 78c acres in Yolo county. Very interesting experiments are now being made on this farm to determine what variety of wheat is richest in gluten; whether the best results are obtained from the drill or broadcast system of sowing the grain, etc.

The courses of instruction are short; students of both sexes are received and no charge made for instructions. As a rule Mr. Neff thinks that the farmer does not understand business methods and if the profits of the farm are not large he falls to rest along. In place of Mr. Trueman, Mr. E. A. Fischer, a pioneer of the Burbank foothill region, gave an interesting talk on table grape culture. He advocated planting vines in rows 12 feet apart and vines 5 feet apart in the row, as allowing closer cultivation and giving better results than in squares. In his opinion the Muscat grape will not attain perfection here. A very good quality is produced at Monte Vista, but not equal to the best. The grape does better with irrigation. One of the best early varieties is the Thompson's seedless and the Malvoisie is one of the best of the black varieties. He mentioned the case of one grower who received $250 for one ton of fine table grapes that had ripened late. The Concord variety is subject to disease.

Mr. Neff gave a good talk on irrigation, presenting some interesting facts as to the subject, dwelling particularly on the loss of moisture resulting from failure to put the soil in proper condition after irrigation.

Dr. Leighton of the State University gave some details of their work on soil analysis. Samples of soil are analyzed free at the university laboratory. Samples should be taken to a depth of four feet, a sample for each foot of depth; they should be carefully labeled and accompanied by a letter giving particulars. The knowledge obtained by a correct analysis is of great value in applying fertilizers to the best advantage. The talk given by Dr. Twombly was from a chemist's standpoint with reference to fertilizers, their use and effect and giving instruction as to how the farmer can manufacture for his own use. He stated that the value of farm manure is about $3.00 per ton, while that from the poultry yard is worth twice as much. Much of the value of manure is lost if not immediately incorporated with the soil.

In his talk on Humus in the soil, Prof. Leighton made an interesting comparison of the soils in the Eastern States with that of California; the amount of humus in Eastern soils is from 1 to 5 per cent., here it is from 5 to 25. In California we have no sub-soil; the depth of soil here is about 3 feet as against as many inches in the Atlantic States. It is the humus in the soil that holds the moisture.

At the evening session Ernest Brouton, of the Los Angeles Times, gave an instructive talk on Eucalyptus for lumber; speaking of the peculiarities of the various varieties and the specific purposes to which the different kinds are adapted. The subject of Poultry was treated very fully and in a practical manner by Mr. Charles Kline, who is engaged in that business on a very large scale at Burbank. The
